Keenan Auto Body Process Earns Recognition for Workplace Safety

For the third consecutive year Keenan Auto Body has been recognized by the Pennsylvania Department of Labor for its unyielding commitment to workplace safety. This recognition includes a discount on their workers compensation costs.

Mike LeVasseur, Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of Keenan, states, "Compliance is an integral part of our management system. Discounts earned by this process help control cost and contribute to our profitability. This recognition by the Department of Labor reflects an effective process and continuous awareness of safety issues by all employees in each of our eight locations."

"The Compliance Solution™ is a visible part of our management system," according to Jerry Searing, General Manager of Keenan's Clifton Heights facility.

"It emphasizes the importance of safety and maintains awareness among all employees. Besides protecting our business, it effectively communicates to our employees our concern for their health and safety. Best of all, it gets done without interfering with customer care and vehicle repair responsibilities."

GMG EnviroSafe provides The Compliance Solution™ that supports Keenan in this effort. Naomi Fox of EnviroSafe facilitates mandatory monthly safety meetings that are an important part of Keenan's management process. According to Naomi, "These meetings complement monthly employee training and quarterly EnviroSafe Assessments. They are key in providing visibility and getting compliance issues addressed."

Keenan Auto Body, headquartered in Clifton Heights, owns eight state-of-the art collision repair centers throughout southeastern Pennsylvania and Delaware.

GMG EnviroSafe has been serving the collision repair industry for twenty years, providing flexible solutions that cost-effectively address safety, health and environmental issues facing the industry.
